Republican State Convention.

A Republican State Convention will be held at the city of Madison, in the Assembly hall of the Capitol, on Wednesday, the 13th day of August next, at 10 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of electing delegates to the National Convention to be held at St. Louis, Mo., on the 12th day of September next, and to transact any other business that may properly come before it.

As the subject of selecting delegates to the next National Convention may be considered and acted upon by the Convention, it is suggested that the people in their primary expression, and the district convention, make such expression as will indicate to the delegates and the State Convention, the general sentiment of the State on that subject.

Each Assembly District will be entitled to two delegates in the convention.

It is recommended that district conventions for the purpose of electing delegates to the State Convention, be held on the 30th day of August, and that committees be appointed to call for that purpose, and it is especially urged that every district be represented in the convention.

We wish some one would send the Janesville Gazette a pint of ink, that Charles Holt might print his paper with color enough to have it read, easier than it does.—Mil. News.

Brick, your good feelings are appreciated, and excuse the dig you have given us. The Gazette has been through a season of tribulation known only to printers. For a long time that beauty of an American press beat every one who had the temerity to touch it; then we tried the experiment of sending the press work out of the office, and a hand press and candle light on old types hardly improved the execution of the "American" threatening machine. Finally, (last Saturday) we got a Taylor cylinder in operation, and then the temperature of Tophet melted down our new rollers about as fast as they could be put on the stocks, and the ink feeding has been done to a great extent by hand on a distributor bound up in cloth and tied in ridges by strong twine.

But there is a good time coming. Our new press works to a charm, and as soon as we can get a set of rollers and distributors together than the three salamanders whom Nebuchadnezzar failed to burn up, or the thermometer will get down into the respectable neighborhood of 60, we will stop printing we shall not be ashamed of. Our ink keg has an abundant supply, and there shall be plenty of "dope," even on our exchanges, when we can make something that will hold it.

AN IMPROVEMENT.—The case of Jones vs. the city of Milwaukee, which has been pending in our circuit court during the past two weeks, was given to the jury at three o'clock Thursday afternoon. The jury brought in a verdict yesterday morning of $2,000 for the plaintiff. This case was brought by the plaintiff for damages to his property on the beach, just below the harbor, and which injuries, he says, resulted from the building of that harbor. Before the harbor was built, the beach had no break in it between the new harbor and the old one. But now the lake washes entirely over the beach below the new harbor, and a portion of the city the plaintiff's buildings on the beach were surrounded by water, so that it was impossible to use them, and they are now surrounded with water.—Milwaukee News.

STREAM CARRIAGES.—The Philadelphia press record the fact that a self-propelled steam fire engine lately was run from that city to Taunton, over the road of the country, which is an ordinary turnpike, with highly satisfactory results. All the inequalities of surface, (and some sharp hills were encountered), were overcome without difficulty. At times the rate of speed traveled was sixteen miles an hour! Our New York and Philadelphia contemporaries are anticipating important results from this experiment.

BY TELEGRAPH.

New York, July 11.

The steamship City of Baltimore and Adelaide have arrived. The City of Baltimore brings Liverpool dates to the 30th ult. They were received by telegraph to Queenstown.

Count Pourtales, the Austrian Ambassador, had arrived at the head quarters of the Austrian army.

The Austrian head quarters had been moved to Verona.

France is preparing to move an army on the Rhine.

Gen. Guayli, the ex commander-in-chief of the Austrians, has taken command as colonel of a regiment bearing his name.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times says in regard to the battle of Salferio, that Gen. Neill, with 30,000 men and two divisions of cavalry, in all about 50,000, were engaged at 4 P. M., when he succeeded in forcing the Austrian center.

After fighting twelve hours, the Austrians had brought up reserves of 80,000 men, and the French a reserve of fifty thousand.

It was a most critical moment, and in three hours the general fighting ended to the advantage of the allies. The Zouaves are said to have been most cut up, and the first Chasseurs of Algiers were terribly treated.

General orders were wounded and one killed. Orders have been received at Milan to prepare 14,000 beds for the use of the wounded.

Tunis, June 28.

The Piedmontese Gazette publishes official details of the battle written the same evening. According to positive information, 25,000 Sardinians held their ground against 50,000 Austrians, who occupied a formidable position from which they were dislodged by the Sardinians under the orders of King Victor Emmanuel. The Sardinian loss is about 1,000 killed and 1,000 wounded.

The Times' Paris correspondent reports that a project has been opened for the mobilization of one hundred battalions of national guards and for organizing them for service.

The London Times' Paris correspondent says the Piedmontese were at one time during the battle of Salferio, completely enveloped by the Austrians, but they recovered, and repulsing the enemy, kept their positions with exceeding courage till help came.

Deserters from the Austrians state unanimously that there were 40,000 Austrians at Pozzuelongo. The position fell to the Piedmontese. Gen. Baragazy d'Hilliers won Salferio, and marched against Carriano. The heights were occupied by the French, and the Austrians were forced to retire.

CHURCHMAN BUTCHERY BY THE POP'S SOLDIERS.—The details received of the recent massacre at Perugia by the Swiss papal troops, state that neither sex nor age was spared. Among the murdered after the fighting had ceased, were three married couples, three unmarried females, and a girl four years old. An infant was also torn from its mother's breast and thrown into the Tiber.

WAR IN SOUTH AMERICA.—Rio Janeiro advices to June 7th had reached Lisbon. News from Buenos Ayers had been received stating that 2,000 men had invaded the Argentine Confederation. Paraguay had promised to assist them. Uruguay with four thousand men, and the Brazilians were in neutral, but are increasing their naval force in the La Plata. Four steamers had been purchased by Buenos Ayers. No political news from Brazil.

THE ATTITUDE OF PRUSSIA.—It is still uncertain what Prussia purposes. Nothing has yet transpired to positively indicate her intention as to take sides with Austria. This seems to be her purpose, and that it is, generally taken for granted. But all the French journals do not concur in this opinion. Some even intimate that she will be found, ultimately, acting as a mediator to secure peace upon the basis of Italian nationality. The weight of probabilities, however, is, that her sympathies are with Austria, and that very soon those sympathies will find expression either in the field of diplomacy or war. Russia will stand aloof as an offset, not only with her sympathies with the allies, but with her armies ready to take the field should Prussia take the field.

Dr. Norton S. Townsend, once a prominent member of congress from Ohio, has got himself into trouble at Winona, Minnesota, in attempting to clandestinely convey a couple of children for whom he was a guardian in Ohio, out of Minnesota back to Ohio. The doctor's object was a very good one, being to prevent the property of the children from being squandered by the mother and her new husband, but he did it in a very illegal and unbecoming way, and renders the actors liable to the penitentiary. Some of the doctor's associates have been pronounced guilty. The doctor has not been tried.

A shaver at St. Paul, who had been in the regular receipt of his three and five per cent a month, but had successfully evaded the payment of any taxes, was pounced upon by the tax collectors just as he was in the act of transferring a cool thousand to his pockets, collected of his interest, which cool thousand instead of being deposited in a bank to the credit of the city. At the latest dates he was seeking legal relief with small prospect of finding any.

EXCEEDINGLY FAMOUS.—The Paris correspondent of the New York Express writes to the paper as follows in a recent letter.

A young clerk has been for the last four years employed in the counting house of a Paris merchant, in the Spanish trade. This letter has a niece, brought up in Spain, and an orphan. She is not beautiful, but refined and intelligent. At balls which she attended here, the past winter, escorted by her uncle she danced but little, the truth being that she was seldom invited, when the young clerk chanced to be present, and offered the civility of requesting her to be his partner in a quadrille. It was thus that their acquaintance was made and ripened into intimacy.

A fortnight ago, the clerk obtained permission from Mademoiselle Fabrice to demand her hand in marriage from a guardian, his employer. The guardian, after some delay, had received the proposal with coolness. However after a long conversation with his niece, he gave his consent, and the marriage took place as soon as the necessary formalities could be gone through with.

Two days subsequently, at breakfast, the young bride, observing the discontent of her husband being obliged to return to business so early in the honey moon, said:

"Well, don't go to-day. Don't go any more."

"Not go to the counting-house my love," said he; "That is easy enough to say but—"

"It is easy enough to do, also."

"Indeed? How so?"

"Nothing more simple in the world. I have a million and a half of a fortune! In my apparently modest position I determined to choose a husband with a good heart. Do you blame me?"

The gentleman's reply is not recorded.

P.A. PRAIRIE OFFICE.—Some of the collectors of the office stationed along the Erie canal were very profitable institutions to the state.—There is one located in a western county in which are employed a collector, two clerks, and, for aught we know an assistant, (that being the custom) and the entire receipts for the last week in June, which embraced eight days, amounted to the sum of four dollars.

A Duel in New Jersey.

The N. Y. Post gives an account of a duel which happened in New Jersey last Sunday, between two rabid young men; on account of an alleged insult given to a lady friend of one of them. The Post says:

Finally, on Sunday evening, a little before sunset, the parties set out for the ground, which had been chosen in the border of a wood, behind a high board fence. They arrived at the spot about the same time. No. 1 looking fierce, determined. The friends again conferred with a view to an adjustment, but neither party had any new propositions to make, as No. 1 insisted on an immediate and unconditional apology or a fight, and No. 2 insisted on a like humiliation on the part of his antagonist.

No. 2 informed his sympathizing friends that he had a presentiment he should fall, and called on them to witness his perfect calmness, to which they bore witness with great admiration. He placed in the hands of his second a document which gave full directions for the disposition of his property, and assured his innocence.

The ground was measured, and the parties placed at twelve paces. The deadly weapons were placed in their hands, and all declared ready. No. 1, in shaking hands with his second, drew a dagger from his pocket, opened it and gazed upon it with great fondness for a moment, and placed it in his friend's hands, with a few low hurried words. The second then stepped aside and one of them announced that everything had been prepared. "Fire! one! two! three!"

The first word was scarcely given when both weapons were discharged, but, strange to say, both gentlemen stood whole and unharmed, and the surgeon who stood by with instruments and bandages had nothing to do. No. 1, it was believed, fired to high, and No. 2's charge must have entered the earth about midway between him and his antagonist. No. 2 had declared he did not mean to kill his foe; but when he found that he had really been shot at he changed his mind, and swore he would take aim at him unless he apologized. No. 1 was irascible, and declared that nothing but an apology or blood would satisfy him. No. 2 called heaven to witness that he was an innocent man, but was not afraid to defend his honor at the risk of his life, and the weapons were newly loaded. They stood up now more determined than ever, the word was again given, and both fired, with the evident determination of giving his antagonist a bullet in the breast; but neither succeeded in this laudable resolution. No. 1, however, informed his second that a bullet whistled through his hair over the left ear. The surgeon examined, but was unable to find any traces of it.

The opposite party took courage from this, and No. 2 swore he would come nearer him, with the next half if he did not apologize, and seemed rather anxious to try his hand once more. But the friends interfered; No. 2 again asserted his innocence, and No. 1 said if he would do it upon his word as a man of honor, he was satisfied. No. 2 said he had done it several times already, and would not do it again; and if No. 1 was not satisfied with that he might take the consequences. No. 1 said he had not understood No. 2 to assert it upon his word of honor, or he should have been satisfied before. No. 2 said he had and asserted it, and all his friends bore witness that he had. No. 1 then declared himself satisfied; but No. 2 said he would not leave the field until No. 1 had apologized for the public insult he offered him.

No. 1 said that since the affair arose from a misunderstanding, he was willing to withdraw his language, and acknowledge that he had been too hasty. This was deemed sufficient; the deadly foes shook hands in firm friendship, and soon after walked off arm in arm.

The opinion of No. 1 that a ball whistled through his hair seems to have been entirely imaginary, from the fact that a subsequent examination of No. 2's pistol revealed the fact that only the cap went off, while the charge remained in the barrel. The affair was soon known in the neighborhood, and created a good deal of interest. The young men engaged in the affair, at last accounts, were fast friends.

ROMANCE IN JAIL.—The conspiracy by which Calwallader Wallace, Jr., who murdered John Godfrey at Chillicothe, escaped from the Ross county jail, is being divulged. It will be remembered that Wallace shot Godfrey in the street on account of his demurring at getting out of a wagon in some girls of the town. He escaped some months ago mysteriously. Nelson McCollister, an attorney at Chillicothe, has recently divulged the affair. It seems that young Wallace enlisted the servant girl of the deputy sheriff, Rose, and she took a man named Long into the plan, and one night while Rose was absent the prison doors were opened and Wallace escaped. A few moments after the girl raised an outcry, and the citizens found her with her eyes bandaged and hands bound, and generally acting the part of having been overcome by force. Suspicion attached to the deputy sheriff, and the party organs improved the occasion to lament that John R. Anderson, the democratic candidate, had not been elected in place of the republican, when all such affairs would have been avoided.

It appears, also, that the father of Wallace, who is a wealthy man, had effected a bargain with this same Anderson and George S. Baker, city marshal of Chillicothe, to liberate the prisoner; but while they were at his house concluding the plan, young Wallace appeared, having got the start of them; therefore these conspirators got no money.

As in all well-regulated plays, there was an under-plot in this, in which more women were concerned, and this underplot was the means of divulging the affair. A young citizen of the place was intimate with the sisters of McCollister. Anderson also visited these; the young men were jealous; one night, when Anderson was coming, he secreted himself, and overheard him tell one of the girls his plan for the escape of Wallace. Subsequently he threatened Anderson to divulge unless he paid him $1,000. Anderson being short, gave him his note for the amount, and took a written pledge of secrecy. The note matured, and was not taken up. Finally it was settled by Anderson paying $100, and the papers were cancelled; but a third party had been called, and he is now a witness. The case is before the grand jury of Ross county.

John R. Anderson is the same deputy United States marshal who figured so conspicuously in the Connelly case, in Cincinnati, in 1887, and is said to be the individual who shot the poor negro fugitive in the building on Vine street. He is said to be the man who, upon being defeated in the election as the administration candidate for sheriff of Ross county, was conspired by "J. B.," who gave him a contract for manufacturing munitions of war at Portsmouth, O.; and he is the chap of whom the Chillicothe Advertiser said, never would have escaped.—Columbus Journal.

Mr. William Russell, the well known Crimean correspondent of the London Times, found some difficulty in getting permission to follow the army of the Allies, although he was armed with credentials from Lord Aberdeen. He finally succeeded, however, and one letter from him has been published.

Lines on the "Death of M. J. N."

"Weep not; she is not dead, but 'sleepeth.'"

O, she is not dead, but 'sleepeth!'

Yet she has passed from earth forever,

And many a fond heart now weeps,

That she returneth to us never.

O, what heartfelt grief, what anguish!

To part with one so young, so brave,

To lay that form so lovely,

In the silent and dreary grave.

On a painful couch did languish

Our daughter, sister, pupil, friend,

Till death, the great destroyer,

Did her life and sorrows end.

But she is not dead; she 'sleepeth,

Although her dreams are not of earth;

For a nobler charge she keepeth,

Than things of terrestrial worth.

But O, she's left that well loved place,

Where friends pleasures were most sweet!

Nor joins again that happy throng,

In the school room's pleasant retreat.

They miss that loved one's smiling face,

When her playmates gay are nigh,

The music of her cheerful voice,

And the glance of her laughing eye.

Yet she is not dead; she 'sleepeth

On the hill where wild flowers wave,

And the night-bird slowly repeateth

In requiem over her grave.

And many a sigh now is sighing

Mournfully o'er her lowly bed,

Waking sad and dirge-like music

In that lone city of the dead.

'Neath yon gravely mound she's lying,

Calmly in the earth's dark breast,

Storms of sorrow, however gloomy,

Cannot disturb her peaceful rest.

No, she is not dead, she 'sleepeth,

Though that fair young form has perished,

And vanished, as over death's

The vision we most have cherished.

Death casts all our prospects here,

As all will worldly aspects here,

His shafts are keen, his omen cruel,

Our fondest hopes, and dreams,

And all we hold most dear.

But faith alone dispels the gloom;—

Behold the dark a silver cloud

Reflects a life beyond the tomb.

Sarah is not dead, but 'sleepeth;

Her spirit hath flown to rest

With Him, who kindly seeketh

His lambs to fold on His breast.

In the morn of life she's left us,

With beauty's bloom on her cheek,

In tender youth and innocence,

The angel's throne to greet;

Where the grief that hath oppressed us,

Can not becloud her brow,

For in heaven's choral symphonies

Her voice is mingling now.

A FERRYMAN CARRIED AWAY BY A WHIRLED.—The Norfolk Daily News, in speaking further concerning the late whirled in Gloucester, Va., says:

Old Oliver, the ferryman between York and Gloucester points, was not drowned, but persons at York saw him taken up by the wind and carried off. Two negroes who were in a shed at the time the entire roof of which was blown off, heard the whirling of air. Oliver as he was quickly borne through the air. His cries and groans, says our informant, as he was dashed through the air, were truly distressing. His appeals for assistance were without avail, for no human power could rescue him from death, and in a few moments he was beyond hearing, nor has his body been seen since that terrible evening. In the course of the tornado more than twenty houses were either destroyed or materially damaged, seventeen of which were dwellings; among them was that beautiful residence of Mr. Tabb, known as Tabby's.

A CUNNING FACT, IF TRUE.—Cass county, Michigan, immediately west of Constatine, is dotted by lakes strung upon threads of water, which link them together for many miles in extent. It has been discovered for some time that they contain whitefish, precisely the same fish that has so long been found and captured in our large lakes, and sold for market. They have been steadily increasing from year to year, until quite large bands are made, and offered for sale in the village markets. These fish, then very small, come in our midst some ten years ago, upon the wings of a tremendous storm, recently swept with fury over Cass county, and they fell, "some upon land and some upon water," and were found gasping upon land after the storm was spent, by many persons who were in its track. They went up from Lake Michigan, probably, in a waterspout. The seed was well sown, and the crop is a continual one to all persons in the vicinity.

GREEN BAY EXPORTS.—The following, from the Green Bay Advocate, makes a pretty favorable exhibit of business at that port:

Exports.—John V. Suydam, Esq., collector, hands us the following list of exports from the port of Green Bay, for the quarter ending June 30, 1893:

210 dozen tubs.

230 bundles of spokes.

62,920 pounds of pearl shales.

6,295 pounds leather.

37,178 pounds sugar.

6,393 pounds maple sugar.

2,004 boxes fruit.

8,644 pounds slippery elm bark.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE DEALERS.

JANESVILLE, July 13, 1893.

Receipts of wheat were considerably better yesterday than the day before, but prices were decidedly lower, particularly for No. 1. We note sales of common No. 1 at 60c, and fair at 70c. Fair to very choice milling spring ranged from 80c to 1.00, the market being very quiet and heavy. There were a number of cars of corn in which add at from 60c to 70c per bu. The oats remain in moderate demand at 26c 3/4.

We make up prices as follows:

Wheat—white winter, 1,10c 1/2; good to extra milling spring, 80c 1/2; common to fair No. 1, 50c 1/2.

Rye—quotable at 80c 3/4 per 60 lbs.—none coming forward.

Barley—selling in small lots at 30c to 40c, per 50 lbs. Oats—shelled, per 60 lbs, 55c 1/2; extra 70c 1/2, 53c 1/2.

Oats—in moderate demand at 26

LOCAL DEPARTMENT

GETTING READY FOR THE FALL BUSINESS.
Messrs. Parley & Harlow appear by their advertisement this morning, to be getting ready for the approaching fall business. We hope for the benefit of all concerned, that they will have enough business to do to fully employ all their means and facilities. As dealers they enjoy the confidence of all who buy or sell with them, and their facilities for a large business are not surpassed in this section of the state. Their store-house is the largest in the city, and has a capacity to store a very large quantity of goods, while with their extended business connections they can make a sale at any of the lake shore or eastern selling points which their customers may select, or keep their products in store until the state of the market induces a sale.

As one item of their business, we understand they have purchased during the past season, about 40,000 lbs. of wool. Aside from the article and products they purchase, they sell salt, water and quick lime, stevedore, &c. With an active fall trade, which there is every reason to expect, they must do a large business to the reciprocal benefit of themselves and their friends.

AN EXPLANATION.—In setting up the item that J. M. Bachelor, while struggling with Mr. H. Brown, on Thursday last, accidentally broke his leg just above the ankle, the compositor omitted the word "struggling" before Times, and we regret that in consequence the impression was given that the parties named were Messrs. Bachelor and Brown of this city. Mr. Hiram Brown, our late associate, is no such man, and Mr. Bachelor is sound in both of his lower limbs.

OUR SATISFIED.—The exploits of one of the men committed to jail Monday deserves more than a passing notice. He is an Irishman named Brown, and in the employment of Trank & Howard. Resorting to liquor as a relief from the oppressive heat of the day, he seems to have added an internal to the external heat, and lost all control of himself. He first knocked down an old man, and then, to change the play, struck a boy. After this he fell into the sheriff's hands, assaulted him, and got most beautifully ornamented in the face, as well as lodged in the jail. After the key of the jail was turned upon him, he kicked up a rump with a fellow prisoner, who finished the work the sheriff had commenced, and left him in a condition that would give exercise to a lively imagination to tell what his head and face resembled.

By this time [Brown] has fully come to the conclusion that whiskey is a bad cooler to the blood in a hot day, and that an indiscriminate fight with anybody he comes across is an unprofitable speculation. At least he has had evidence enough to warrant such a conclusion, if he will make a proper use of it.

PRICE OF FLOUR.—The Whitewater Register wants to know why flour is selling from fifty cents to a dollar more a hundred in that village than at Janesville. The reason consists in the difference between a wholesale and retail market. Send to Janesville if you want a whole sale price.

TO CHIEF PLAYERS.—Those persons desirous of organizing a chess club in this city are requested to meet this evening at 8 o'clock at the office of the city clerk.

Letter from the Times.
The following letter from Mr. C. E. Sleep, or has just been received by his brother J. A. Sleep, who furnishes it to us for publication:

ROCKY MOUNTAINS, June 18, 1859.
DEAR BROTHER:—I now have an opportunity to send a letter to Denver City, and I will simply state that I am well, and have been since I left Leavenworth. I am now mining in a small creek called Clear creek. There are 18 men in the company and Mr. Pierce is the captain and treasurer. We have got our bar in shape so it begins to pay, and have taken out a little over four hundred dollars; but I cannot tell how long it will hold out. It prospects well thus far. There are a good many men in the mines, some making from two to fifty dollars per day, while others are making nothing and are turning back. From present prospects, there are as rich if not richer mines here than ever were discovered in California, although it may not be my lot to make anything. I shall stay as long as I can, and get home this fall, as I do not expect a man can work here in winter; and it will cost more to live here through winter than to come home as provisions are high. An luck would have it however we have enough to last us six weeks or two months longer, except a few small things. Flour is worth from $12 to $15 per sack at Denver; bacon from 33 to 50 cents per pound, coffee 50 cents and other things in proportion; good boots from $12 to $15 per pair. I have written to Charles to come out with a load of goods, but have not heard from him yet; but I am certain it will pay well; and I think another season will be a brisk time here as it will be known for certain whether it will or not, for the country is being prospected as fast as the snow will allow them to get back into the mountains. There is one luxury we have which you do not; we carry soft water, cold as ice bounding over the rocks, and we have plenty of wild game from a buffalo to a prairie hen. I received a letter from Helen a few days since, the first and only thing I have heard since I left home. I am anxious to hear from you as you can be to hear from me.

Your affectionate brother,
C. E. SLEEPER.

How to Keep Cool.—The Albany Standard explains the difficulty noting that some have, that one can keep cooler by wearing flannel next to the skin in warm weather. It says there is no more reason in it than there would be in a man wearing two overcoats, each made of the hide of polar bears, to keep the heat out. If a man wants to be cool in extreme hot weather, he must wear such clothes as will carry off the heat from the body, that heat being greater than the atmosphere. Thick flannel is one of the best means of preventing it. If one flannel is good for the purpose, why should not six be better? Men may wear flannel shirts, drawers, &c., for the sake of nicety, and to keep their wardrobe genteel, so that they may be presentable in society. But those who prefer being comfortable to keeping their clothes nice, will carry just as little weight as possible when the thermometer is above ninety.
